

THE GATTE

200

Let us make her a birthday cake.
Mix in it a great variety of faces, sainted
And evil;
Stir in the bones of martyrs.
Take both the great and the small, the strivers
And the do-nothings and pour them in.

Let us make her a birthday cake.
Make it of teachers and learners and tears and Trials and victories.
Stir in the crumbling dust of our holy fathers.
Mix in a thousand inventions, a talking device, a
Rattling tin vehicle, a crazy double-winged metal bird.

Let us make her a birthday cake.
Frost it white for purity, stained pink when you
Measure in our hearts' blood.
Stick on some guns and some ragged dying men.
Sprinkle this about with children's songs, children's Laughter, children's cries.

Let us make her a birthday cake.
Reach up and get that moon for the top, for she has Touched it before.
Handle it carefully. No, it isn't shiny, it's grey and Crumbling. She knows that.

We need one last thing for the center. Do you see that Tattered flag?

Doris Jeane Haigler

At the basketball game
 No small sound has a chance.
 Only the rasping crushing roar
 Of a thousand voices
 And the stamping crushing pounding
 Of two thousand feet
 And the fierce shrilling shriek
 Of a single whistle high above
 The tumult . . .
 No small sound has a chance.

In the winter sunlight . . .
 Walk with your face to the wind,
 But talk with your face turned aside . . .
 For the wind is a cunning thief who
 Ensnares your words and whisks them away
 And obliterates them.

In the winter sunlight . . .
 Walk with your face to the wind,
 But catch your belongings against you . . .
 For the wind is a saucy meddler who filches
 Your written words and reads them whirling and Rollicking through the air.

On rainy days the gray skies are dull,
 The town subdued . . .
 Umbrellas bob like bubbles in the Hubbub
 Of rain-walking shoes . . .
 A hurried murmur of rain-talking Voices . . .
 The flapping stride of rain-knifed
 Trousers legs . . .
 A moving huddle from shelter to shelter.

We seldom spoke of trifling things, but Always books and poems and art
 And God and man . . .
 God and music and man and art and I
 Shyly brought my shabby stills and my Foolish songs to you.
 We spoke again of dreams and God and Everything but human love and you saw my Paintings and listened to my Childlike dreams of that
 Novel I must surely one day write . . .
 You read me poems I had never heard and talked Through tears of art that I had never seen and
 We spoke again of God and man . . .
 And you told of your love for a shining girl with Eyes as blue as the irises that flower in the Eastertide.
 The Eastertide came and we spoke of poems and art
 And God and man . . .
 And when came the time of parting I
 Shyly brought my foolish love to you . . .
 But tremulous and afraid that it might seem as Meagre to you as the shabby stills and the simple
 Songs, I chose to speak of it not . . .
 And like a mannerly child in a stranger's parlor I
 Clasped my hands behind me while we spoke
 Again of God and man . . . and then we Spoke no more.

Speak sparingly to me and touch me not at all,
 For this is a time when I must be alone.
 My way may be grandiose or it may be simple,
 But it is my way, and I must be free to pursue it.
 Grant me these moments . . .
 Deny me not these hours . . .
 Be I in center stage or dreaming somewhere in Obscurity,
 I am doing what I can do, so let me be.
 This is a time when I must be alone.

I have delivered something so valuable
That there can be no price.
My life has been sectioned up in parts
Like an orange
And one of those slices has been expended here.

I came here seeking, finding, but a seeker must Give in return.

The breath of me still lingers in the treetops.
Those corridors . . . those rooms . . .
My dreams are harbored there.
The pressing of my footfall softly whispers
At a doorway.

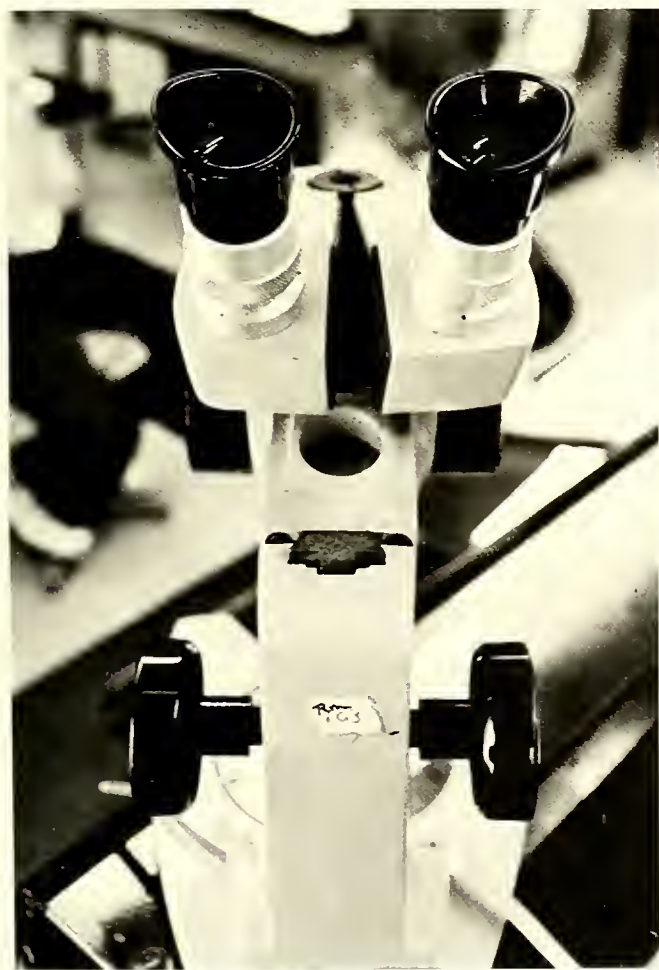

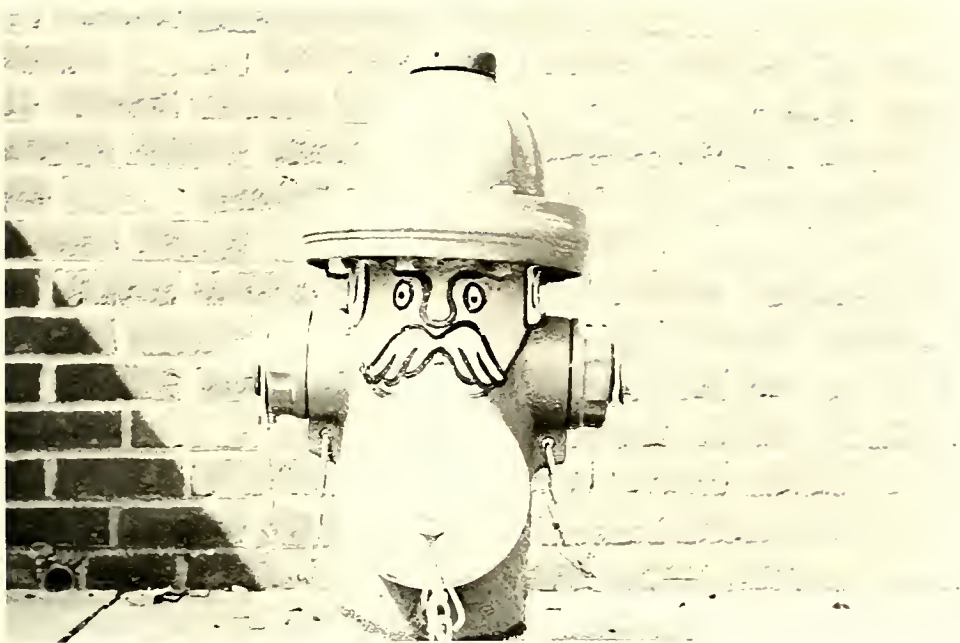

I have offered at the altar of learning
A portion of my life.

Mark the land and drive a stake and
Notch anon a tree.
Draw a map and print a deed ...
Let earth be aught but free.

Carve a name across a wall, upon a wooden desk ...
Label every fleeting thing that man would Fain possess.

From the dust came I
And thither I shall return . . .
To one morning waken in that green
Mist that trembles upon the spring bough
Of the willow. Wild in the land is the crying
Of the summer's warm wind . . . and then at Length I shall again bow to sleep . . .
Drifting down with autumn as its Flaming glory trembles and darkens . . . and dies.

1976 Dedication

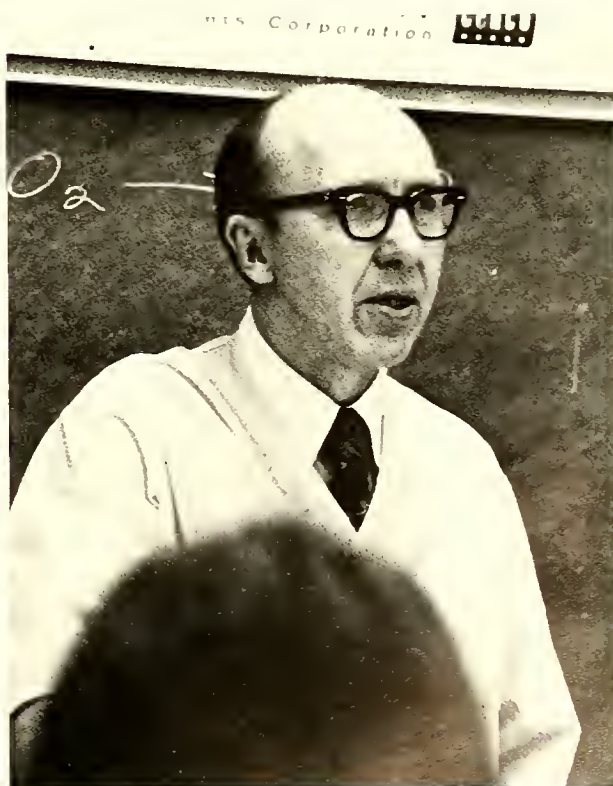

Mr. Walter Raleigh Johnson

1976 Dedication

As a teacher he cannot be surpassed, as a Christian man, he has gained the friendship and esteem of his colleagues, and students. Those who have studied under his leadership will remember him not only because of what he has taught them out of books but what he has taught them from the life he has lived before them. His sincere interest, driving enthusiasm, and friendly personality have made him a part of each class, each activity, and each student. Because of these and many other reasons, we, the yearbook staff, proudly dedicate the 1976 Gate to Mr. Walter Raleigh Johnson. In this bicentennial year when we recall the many men and women who have given unselfishly of themselves to make our country prosper, let us also acknowledge the value of this man to Wingate College. The debt the campus community owes him can never be repaid.

In 1956 Mr. Johnson began his teaching at Wingate as professor of chemistry. His degrees include a B.S. and a M.A. degree from Appalachian State University. He serves as chairman of the Science Department and the Student Functions Committee. He also sponsors Chi Omicron Pi, Wingate's chemistry organization. Married to Edith Parker, Mr. Johnson has two sons: John Roby and Walter Raleigh Johnson, III.

Professors Emeriti

Miss Katherine Copeland
Mr. Thomas M. Teer
Mrs. Ruth Horton
Mrs. Ethel K. Smith
Mrs. Carolyn Caldwell Gaddy

Mrs. Carolyn Caldwell Gaddy and Mrs. Ruth Davis Horton began their teaching at Wingate College in the 1930's, and by their ability, their love for students, and their loyalty to the college, they have been a stabilizing influence during all these years. Students looked forward to their classes because they made their subjects interesting and relevant.

All of the other emeriti faculty members shown here also gave many years of dedicated service to help make Wingate College an outstanding institution of higher learning.

President Emeritus Dr. Budd E. Smith

Dr. Budd Elmon Smith's wholehearted love for Wingate College, his loyalty through serving as the president for twenty-one years, his leadership in beautifying the campus, and his numerous activities and friendships made him a lasting part of Wingate's history. Perhaps above all else, Dr. Smith's many friends remember him for his zest, honesty, sincerity, and profound understanding and interest in each individual student. His strength in defending and fighting for things which he believed to be right, and his faith and trust in those things eternal provide living memories.

Dr. Thomas E. Corts
President
of
Wingate College

Some presidents become isolated, cut off from the reality around them but not President Thomas E. Corts. He has opened his home, his office, and his heart to the people of Wingate College. His eloquence, wit, intelligence, and genuine concern have been a shaping force in creating the sense of community that is developing on the Wingate Campus. Dr. Corts has said he likes to think of the campus as a big integrated group with a feeling of oneness, with the feeling that we are all in this together; we are "all citizens of this academic community."

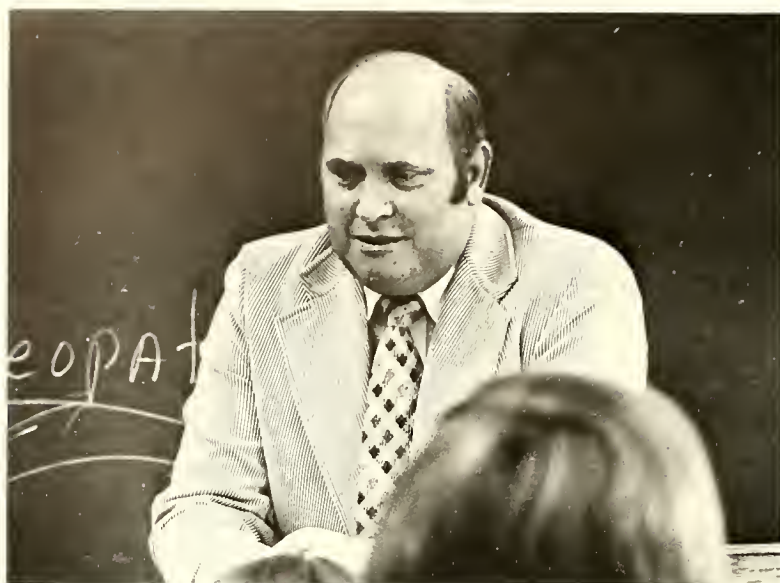

The Corts family which includes Dr. Corts' wife, Marla, and their three children: Jennifer, Rachel, and Christian, resides at Northwood, the college home of the president.

CLASSROOM

PARTICIPATION

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The Student Government Association is composed of an executive branch, officers of respective classes, the cabinet, and dormitory representatives.

In cooperation with the faculty, their main goal is to improve campus life for students and maintain the high standards for which the college is respected.

Some activities sponsored by the SGA throughout the year include an Orientation Dance, a concert, a formal Christmas Dance, a collection of toys for the Underprivileged Children in cooperation with Charlotte's Big Way's, the Miss Wingate Pageant, all student elections, Faculty-Student Variety Shows, a Founder's Day tea, and several informal dances.

Joe Hagler, President; Sharon Simpson, Secretary; Mr. Ralph Williams and Mr. Robert Ferguson, Faculty Advisors.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

The Young Republicans Club functions as an aid to Republican candidates in local and state-wide elections by working closely with the Union County Republican Party. The club also encourages participation in the total electoral process so that its members can develop responsible citizenship.

During the year the club sent delegates to both of the North Carolina Federation of College Republicans' conventions. In the Spring of 1975, the club was awarded "Club of the Year" in the state of North Carolina.

The club also hosted several speakers that were local and national Republican figures.

The main function of the Young Democrats is to train and encourage participation in the total elective process so that its members can develop responsible citizenship.

During the year, delegates are sent to the State Young Democrats' Convention. The group also encourages and assists in the registration of voters and in aiding campaigning Democrats.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS

The cultures of the five countries, Thailand, South America, Japan, Indonesia, and Hong Kong, become tangible in monthly dinner meetings featuring the cuisine of the particular country. Joining the fourteen foreign students on campus are three Cubans, one of whom has become an American. The club also has one member who is a "missionary kid" from South America.

The main purpose of the Day Students' Club is to make the drive-in students feel more a part of the campus life. Social events such as cook-outs and get-togethers are functions that strive to involve commuting students in the affairs of the college.

CIRCLE "K" INTERNATIONAL

Circle "K" International provides college men and women with a means by which those students interested in helping others and being of service in society can express their concern. The motto is "WE BUILD," and in practice means genuinely constructive involvement in the community and on campus.

BLACK STUDENTS' ORGANIZATION

The Black Student Organization is in its first year as a Wingate College club. It feels that each Black student's attributes and contributions to the school should be made and recognized as such. The Black Student Organization seeks, then, to contribute to the awareness of Black students among the college community.

SNEA started the year with a cookout for prospective members and enjoys several such social occasions during the year. It hosted an area meeting of similar clubs which are members of the Student North Carolina Association of Educators, affiliated with the state-wide professional organization. The members will attend the state conference held this spring in Charlotte. Regular meetings include visits off-campus to such places as a diagnostic reading center, or a board of education meeting, as well as having guests come and share experiences that have special interest. Members who choose have an opportunity to arrange to tutor or perform other volunteer services that involve them directly in educating.

All members of Phi Theta Kappa are in the top five percent of the graduating class and are nominated by the Wingate College Faculty in March of the freshman year and September of the sophomore year. Members provide service to the school at special programs such as Founders' Day, Convocation, Lyceums and drama productions. They hold various fund-raising activities to help send members to the State and National Convention. This year they are also sending delegates to the special Faulkner Institute in Mississippi.

Alpha Beta Gamma is the national honor society for two-year business students. The purpose of the society is to promote scholarship, leadership, and cooperation among the men and women who are advancing their professional standing in business. This club also recognizes and encourages scholarship among junior-college students in business curriculum.

PHI BETA LAMBDA

Phi Beta Lambda is a national organization for postsecondary students majoring in business. During the year the chapter has had several businessmen and businesswomen speak on our campus. Phi Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda was represented at the North Carolina Business Education Association meeting in Raleigh, N.C., in November; at the Southern Region Phi Beta Lambda Conference in Gatlinburg, Tenn., in November; and at the North Carolina Phi Beta Lambda State Leadership Conference in Charlotte, N.C., in April. Representatives will be attending the Phi Beta Lambda National Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C., in June.

BLAME IT ON US!

Patti Rushing, Editor.

It is all our fault! We did the whole thing. We are the ones who worked on weekends, at night, between classes or whenever we could find a free moment to meet each deadline. Many long and hard hours went into the work, and the few of us who devoted our spare time (and time we did not have to spare) to the GATE will be glad to take the blame.

ACTIONS

Feelings — serious concentration in classes
 A beautiful blending of mental and physical learning
 Light-hearted moments interspersing the learning processes
 A variety of feelings that will become beautiful memories.

Kindness — like the delicate trimming of a Christmas tree
 That comes from the love of the tree and its beauty
 The faculty shows deep concern
 In the part they play in shaping our lives.

We often find ourselves in peculiar situations
And enjoying every minute of it.

But when things become hard to put up with and a bit of a strain
We repeat the process to avoid further pain.

Music was ever with us Wingate students
 And future Wingate students filled the air with a variety of melodies
 Floating from a variety of instruments
 Those tunes will stay in our minds forever.

Shall we dance? We did some of it all
 From square dance to bump.
 The most fun of all came when we robbed our parents' closets of some of their old outfits
 And ventured out on the dance floor
 Weren't we nifties reviving the "fifties"?

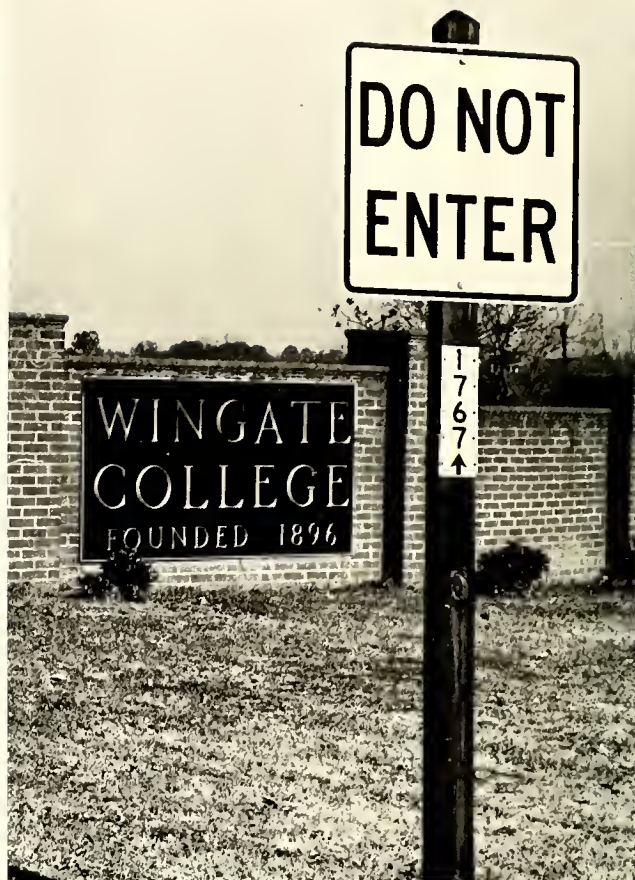

Fun times, happy times blowing bubbles with a friend
 Sharing a sandwich — Riding piggyback (in college!)
 Or just having fun clowning around.
 Was it really we who were involved in all that?

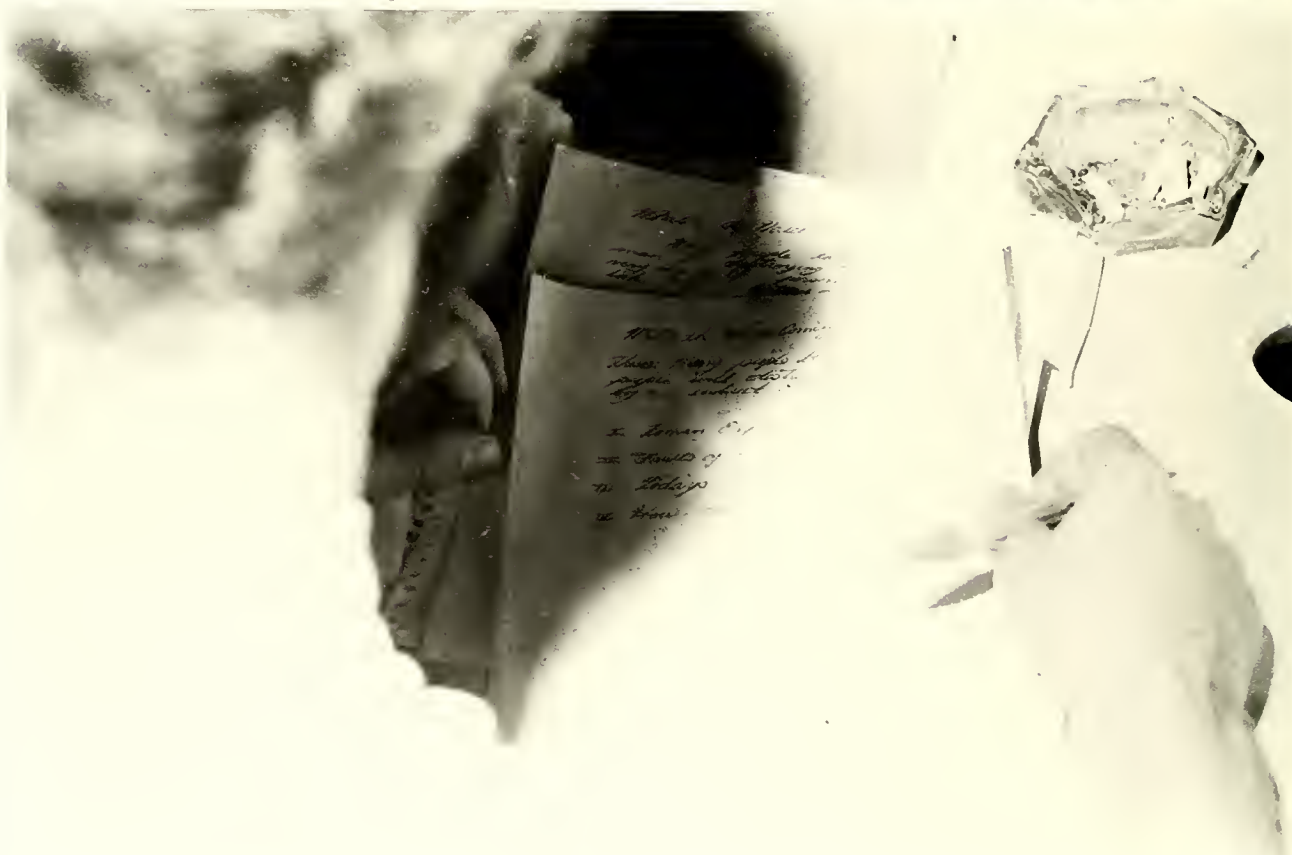

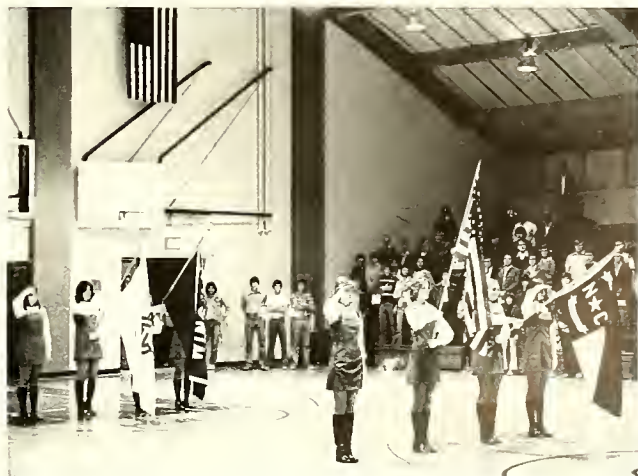

Goose bumps — a chill or a thrill
 A kiss collected under the mistletoe
 Or not under it —
 Feelings felt then may return again and again.

Joy at the sight of anything in that beloved mailbox
 "Wierd," "far out" phrases of our day
 An old-fashioned tire swing on the campus
 And guest artist Vincent Price! Need we say more?

Girls with cold cream faces and messy rooms hurry to join their friends with whom They'll take their walks and enjoy campus talks
 Which will all take part in their changing lives.

Yes, my friend as years pass by
Our thoughts change quickly as clouds in the sky.
Though time will vary them
as it will often do
The times won't change
nor the people we knew.

Physical efforts toward the backbend
 Cheerleaders in position for inspection
 Or just taking it easy — To each his own.
 So many possibilities faced us.

Enjoying youthful visitors and sharing Wingate's
 Movies like "1776" with them —
 Or a ball game —
 And never shall she be forgotten —
 Raggedy Anne, our cherished symbol of eternal youth.

Feelings — our moods have run full circle
From thinking of running back home —

Or finding a nook so we could be alone —
 To feelings of ecstasy — happiness so great
 We felt like hugging the world.

Feelings of warmth —
 Someday we will look back and say
 "We did it hand-in-hand because, as Joey
 the Clown says,
 'All we have in this old world is each other.'"

Remember all the little nooks that meant so much back then;
Amid piles of paper and research books talking to that special friend.

A smile, a tear, a happy thought
 Were part of the dreams that we had sought
 Where are we headed? Will we be blessed?
 Deep anxieties burn in each breast.

Wingate College

Faces You

Yearbooks can be fun! or: Can seventeen people find love and peace working on a yearbook staff?

1975-1976: A year of change, yet a year in which many traditions were realized and maintained. We tried to capture both aspects — in pictures and copy.

We of the 1976 Gate staff hope that, despite the problems which accompany a task of such magnitude, we were in some way able to present a record of what you want to remember of 1975-1976 at Wingate College. If in days to come, cherished memories of the days at Wingate may be awakened by the pursuit of this, the GATE, then indeed our work shall have not been in vain.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank many people who helped to make possible this edition. Special thanks go to: the Gate staff who worked so closely with me and were concerned enough to give of their spare time even when this time was not available.

Mrs. Marie Hinson who was of invaluable service. She not only gave time and advice, but understanding when things were seemingly impossible.

Mrs. Doris Jeane Haigler for her thoughts and ideas regarding much of the copy used. She contributed poems for the opening section.

Mr. Sid Davis, my publications consultant for the Hunter Yearbook Company, for his advice and help concerning the production of the book.

Mr. Linn E. Joy for the many photographs he supplied.

Mr. Ralph C. Williams, my advisor, who encouraged, advised, and supported me. He is an excellent person who is always willing to be of assistance.

Perhaps most of all, I would like to thank the students of Wingate College, who with their thoughts and minds form this campus community.

Sincerely,
Patti Rushing, Editor
The 1976 GATE
